

Welcome to 'The Job Hunt!'

With nearly one in 10 Americans looking for work, the job search is tougher than ever. PARADE chose five unemployed people looking for work and paired each with a career counselor. Our job hunters will be blogging about their job searches on Facebook, while their career counselors will be posting weekly status reports on this blog. Become a Facebook fan of 'The Job Hunt', offer your own advice or support, learn what their career counselors are saying—and, hopefully, congratulate them when they get jobs!

Meet the Job Hunters:

Linda Peavy, 46, of Cleveland, Ohio, worked for 15 years as a marketing and publishing executive. "We all have seasons in our lives," she says. "This is my season for transformation." We've paired her with career expert Catherine Jewell, author of New Resume, New Career.

Meghan Olesen, 30, of Phoenix, Ariz., last worked as an assistant teacher at her daughters' preschool. She once owned a business but says, "Right now, I want a steady position that lets me be there for my family." She'll work with Sherri Thomas, author of Career Smart: 5 Steps to a Powerful Personal Brand.

C. Frog Price, 51, of Leeds, Ala., was laid off from his job as an ad-sales manager last summer. "I'm surprised at how limited the market is now," he says. "Fifteen years ago, I found my last job in one day." He'll work with Jay Block, author of 101 Best Ways to Land a Job in Troubled Times.

When Katie DeVito, 31, lost her job at a nonprofit, she used Twitter to connect with other job seekers near her Hamilton, N.J., home. "Social media is a great way to network with people you might not otherwise meet," she says. Fredrick Ball, author of Killer Interviews, will assist in her job search.

Stephen Shub, 58, was technology director for a community college in the San Francisco Bay area. "You have your head in the sand until it happens to you," he says. "Even after I find a job, I'll keep trying to help people who are unemployed." He'll work with nationally recognized career coach Joel Garfinkle.
